HERRICK MAY D. B. Wesson Is Ill Because of Threats. but Declares He'll Not Yield.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 21.-Daniel B. Wesson, the multi-millionaire revolver king, whose life, $1,125,000 home and great factories have been threatened with destruction by the notorious Black Hand of New York, has been so shocked by the threats that physicians fear for his life.

Mr. Wesson, who is more than eighty has been afflicted with neuritis for som time, which has gradually undermined his system. The threats of the Black Hand have alarmed him, made him a prisoner in his Maple street castle, caused him to surround himself with armed guards, and to send his sons, Joseph and Walter, and his son-in-law, Harcourt Bull, away from the city, fearing that they, too, may be made victims of the Governor's Action in Important Matters blackmailers.

"The letters received by Mr. Wesson are the work of some crude amateur," said City Marshal Stebbins. "The first letter demanded that $400 be taken on a certain night to a place outside the city, and another letter was received demanding a much larger sum.

"A decoy was sent to the place mentioned in the first letter, but there was no one at the place to receive the men, lican plurality in the last five years examined no indications that anyone was around the spot."

BLAMING CLARK. Cry of Politicians Thought to Be in-Bank Scandal.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 21.—The belief is growing that the Enterprise Bank at Allegheny was looted by politicians. Homer L. Castle, Prohibition candidate for state superior court judge, who first drew attention to the bank's affairs by publicly asserting that the institution was carrying practically worthless se-curities which had been deposited by state politicians for personal loans, affirms yesterday:

"I am satisfied that Senator Penrose will be found to have paper in the En-terprise bank. If all the facts in conmeetion with the ruin of the bank are made public my statements will be substantiated. I know positively that there is one note in the bank for $300,000, signed by W. H. (Bull) Andrews and indorsed by Arthur Kennedy and F. J. Torrance."

Keenedy and Torrance are associated with Andrews in the New Mexican rail-road deal that is believed to have absorbed a large part of the bank's funds.
W. A. Seiling, a director of the bank, says: "I suppose that the politicians will do something to keep the affair from going any further, and it is possible that they will put up the money which the bank stands to lose, just to keep things quiet"

The machine politicians charged with "huckstering" state funds have apparently agreed on a line of defense. They lay all the blame on Clark, the dead cashier. "The dead man did it," is their
